EASTER GREETINGS

To the Norway Advertiser from Mrs. [illegible] Pellman Plummer, Norway Lake, Me.

It seems that at Easter
The skies are more blue,
The hills tinged a warmer,
More summer-like hue.
While little wild brooks
All ice-fettered so long
Are caroling fondly
Again their old song.
The fur of the "pussies"
Is turning soft gray
Though still at their feet
The snow patches lay;
And down by the road
One can already see
A reddening blush
On our tall maple tree.
All nature, all people
In whatever clime
Send out joyous greetings
To glad Easter time.
—ANNE ZILPHA PLUMMER.

At last everything is restored through Father Kelly, a priest, and an old friend of the family. The comedy in the play is high class and brings many laughs.

Heard and Seen at Advertiser Office

"Ain't you fussy over names? I understand you won't print names of prize-winning scholars if a portion of the name is omitted. Is that true?"

In a sense it is true as we don't want to see the children abused in that way. We have not refused to print the names but much prefer to use the child's right name. It is a record and let's keep it right. It's wrong to permit children to grow up without due respect for their names.

John Woodman has discovered "That the first sermon preached in a meeting house in New Haven, Conn. was by Mr. Davenport and the text was taken from Matthew, 4-1. George P. Boyce of 53 Park Street, South Paris, is advertising to do mason work of all kinds—brick, tile laying, plastering, etc. See ad.

F. W. Sanborn: "Full Value" is on the cob pipes I got at a recent bargain sale. It is a mistake. The pipes had been wet, varnish started, as well as the cement lining in the bowl. The pipes burn out quickly and are no good as a bargain. Also, I find 25 cents for 6 cob pipes is the regular price in all the stores. I'm disgusted and shall let the women folks do the bargain hunting in the future.

There appears a picture of some of the work of the W. F. Tubbs Co., in the 28 page report of the Central Maine Power Company which shows the equipment for the Byrd South Pole Expedition, consisting of sleds, snowshoes, skis, folding chairs, etc. The picture was taken near the office of the Tubbs factory.

Charles Verenis entertains his customers with sleight of hand. The stunt of making a quarter leap from a water glass is a favorite trick, especially if some wise guy believes it can't be done. Several of the "show me" kind have been caught including the sport editor.

F. W. Noyes leaves with us a truck plate X-7-462. It was found in the road near the Boober turn for Waterford, last Tuesday.

Game Warden Wm. R. French: "As the season for 'dipping' smelts is approaching, I wish to remind everyone that they must have their hunting and fishing certificates on their person while in the act of taking smelts. This also applies to the taking of suckers or any other kind of fish."

O. W. Brown of the Lynn Telegram and Boston Herald was installed vice president of the Lynn Press Club at the annual meeting held Thursday night. He will also perform the duties resting on the shoulders of the chairman of a publicity committee for the annual frolic to be held in Swampscott, May 17. The club cartoonist libeled "Brownie" in the Lynn Telegram. In the picture O. W. is a mess of herring bones and an object lessons for boys smoking "not a cough, etc." Actually friend Brown is not built along angles of a futurist, therefore the five line drawing misrepresents his boarding house.

Roger Hutchins, handling real estate and building loans in San Francisco, Cal., has been generous with tourists booklets, post cards, newspaper clippings and other attractive coaxers. Especially interesting are the magazines, "Progressive California in Rotogravure" issued as part of the San Francisco Chronicle. Were the sporting editor a free moral agent and a rover, the grip would be packed, then away like a bird tra la, to the land of Sunkist oranges, earthquakes and snappy Hollywood. Maine is pretty good, so passed the literature along to William C. Leavitt, who spent his first ten years in California.

Judge Wm. R. Pattangall: "Our probation system needs attention. If the Legislature paid one half as much time to it as it does to fish and game problems it would be wonderful. I do not intend that anything I say shall be taken as applying to Cumberland, but too often it is the case in which the man who does good work during the primary and election, being blessed with too few brains to be made janitor of the County Court House, is appointed probation officer."

Henry Smart brought in number plate X-7-467 which he found in the mud, Wednesday on Whitman street.

CHIMNEY FIRE

Dense smoke and flames issuing from a chimney in the building opposite the Beals Tavern, occupied by Arthur Harriman and the Norway Food Shoppe required the attention of several firemen early Monday afternoon. Hand extinguishers were used until the motor chemical's large tank was unloaded into the chimney. Considerable heat developed in the attic and the woodwork next the bricks threatened to smoulder. The fire was extinguished without damage.

CIVIL SERVICE

Pennesseewassee Lodge of K. of P.'s contribution to the amateur season of 1928-29 bids fair to draw a record crowd if the sale of tickets is any forecast.

In striking contrast to the season's previous shows, "Civil Service" is a melodrama of a decade ago, before the advent of the automobile. A wholesome depiction of honest Americanism, "Civil Service" represents the best ideals of a loveable, God-fearing people.

From a part of this show has been taken a reading which has been featured on the programs of the country's best dramatic readers. A plot cleverly hidden until the last, together with humor, pathos and a mixture of versatile interpretation of character, makes up a story very dear to the hearts of all New Englanders.

Some new faces will be seen when the curtain is drawn on the first act of Civil Service at Norway Opera House, April 12, 1929.

EASTER PEACE

Only a tiny seedling, brought Easter's peace to me.
All through the winter I watched it, and cared for it tenderly.
But when, on Easter morning, I beheld a blossom white,
It had unfolded its petals, just through one short night.
And then I seemed to hear it say, "Be glad, it is Easter Day.
Look! it is Springtime, though I was dead, Yet do I live again."

YOUTH AND AGE

In a sort of bill of rights written by some youthful hand and recently published there in a demand that age acknowledge the superior advantages and consequent intelligence of youth and grant them far more than is always customary. It is held that modern youth knows better how to take care of itself and so does not need the safeguards of other generations. Guidance or even maintenance from elders is spurned and supreme confidence and self-reliance expressed.

This makes rather sober reading for the gray heads, for to them the most irritating feature of life is that youth always has to learn by experience. This may be the chief reason why no generation is ever quite satisfied with the succeeding one but is always trying to have its own mistakes avoided by preaching against them. And just so youth is always cock sure—until experience shows otherwise.

Youth is always trying something that has been tried before because it considers it new or even revolutionary. Every generation has had its sheiks and flappers, dressed differently, to be sure, not mannered the same or trying just identical experiments. General characteristics of youth have changed very little from generation to generation, however, and there are a great many mistakes that are never worn out with use.

Actually there wasn't anything new in the "bill of rights" already referred to. Girls of an older generation would have gotten just as much "kick" out of having a personal latchkey as those of the present do in living in a bachelor apartment and earning their own living. The principle is just the same and only the demonstration differs. So youth is not hitting upon so many new things as it imagines and most of its experiments from which it expects so much are only the discarded failures of older generations. Hence much of its boasting and high-headed declarations sound so silly to older ones who have sought the same goal only by a different course.

Modern youth glories in rebellion, but that is nothing new, for youth is always rebelling. Always, too, age and experience makes conservatives. Old sticks-in-the-mud of the present are not that because they know or dare nothing different but because that that is the inevitable result of all the glorious adventuring of flaming youth. Even modern youth can tell parents little they do not know and common knowledge of elders is often concealed to smother unpleasant memories. Parents are not always willing to have their children know what fools they were in their youth so profess ignorance and astonishment to conceal altogether different emotion many times.

Youth cannot be told these things, of course, but must learn them by experience. This makes youth's attitude, even as startling as it often is at present, as natural as that of age. It seems to be just the nature of things for youth to be everlastingly trying to show age something it thinks is new and age trying to prove to youth that it is only old and worthless. If age could only teach youth as well as experience their relations might be altogether different. But it can't be done, and so youth is always youth and age is age generation after generation, each trying to do the impossible for the other.

DEFEAT OF SELF

How we love to boast about our prowess! We can beat Germany, Japan, England—the World—but over in England there are thirty million people who utter the same boast except that "America" is substituted for "England" and in Germany and Japan there are other millions with similar ideas.

We can whip the Democrats or Republicans as the case may be. We can hammer the daylights out of the whites, the blacks or the yellow race—as the case may be. We can smash the Irish, batter the Jews, butcher the Italians and slaughter the Chinese.

And so we boast, even those of us who could not beat an egg, whip cream, thresh wheat, mash potatoes, or even lick a postage stamp.

All we do is "blah" and make more enemies instead of friends. We can defeat others, but we prove by our boasting that we have not yet defeated that inner self that needs defeat so badly.

Defeat yourself—and you will find that those who remain are friends that need no defeat.

MOOSE OF ROCKY MT.

Big Horn, the Moose, Finds a Friend By Albert Ring, Bryant Pond, in 4th Grade, Aged 8 Years

Once upon a time Big Horn, the moose, went down Rocky Mountain to eat grass. Off he started up hill and down dale until he came to the other side of the mountain and began to eat grass.

But at the foot of the mountain was a cottage and near the cottage were some children and as soon as they saw Big Horn they ran in and told their father who at once came running out with a gun. But Big Horn knew all about guns, so off he started.

Soon it was dark, and as Big Horn wandered over the mountain he smelled wolf. He gave a frightened snort and started to run all over the mountain, as fast as he could go. At last Big Horn knew he must do some trick to fool the wolves. Soon he came in sight of a roaring river. Then he had an idea, so he began to run as fast as he could. Then he gave a big jump and landed right in the river, then he began to swim as fast as he could go. As soon as he had gone down the river out of sight he got out of the river and started off up Rocky Mountain. He had not gone far, however, before he smelled something, not like a wolf, but of a panther. Off he started as fast as he could go. Once he gained a lot because he was on the side of a deep gulley with steep sides. Then the panther jumped at Big Horn, but he jumped across the gulley and the panther landed in the gulley.

On went Big Horn until he came in sight of a cabin. That gave him an idea, so into the cabin he ran. He made so much noise that a hunter who had stayed there woke and shot at the panther, who just then came in. Big Horn was happy. He had found a friend.

II.

A Fight

Some days after the adventure with the wolf and the panther, Big Horn started down to Roaring River to get a drink of water. On the way he met Swiftfoot, the deer. He had been running and was all out of breath. "Hello" said Big Horn. "Hello yourself," said Swiftfoot.

"What's your hurry, Swiftfoot?" "Well, Big Horn, I have some news to tell you;" "as I was coming to the river to get a drink of water, I heard two men talking." "The first man said he had shot at you, once," "I remember that," said Big Horn. "Yes," the other man said, "they could never shoot you, for you were too old and smart, and that you were the old Moose of Rocky Mountain." "Then I heard dogs barking so I went up the river so they could not follow me."

Just then, there came a loud bang, and Big Horn's antlers rattled. Swiftfoot ran away, but Big Horn, who was very angry, ran at the man and drove him up a tree. Then because Big Horn could not reach the man he tried to dig up the tree, but he could not.

He stayed at the foot of the tree, watching the man. The man took aim at Big Horn. Just then Big Horn saw his chance. He gave a jump and landed right on top of a rock about two feet high. The man again turned his gun at Big Horn, but he didn't have time to aim, so he just fired and hit Big Horn on the top of his back. It only made Big Horn angry because it hurt him. He butted the tree so hard, that it shook the man out of the tree. Then he sprang at the man. All at once he stopped, he sniffed the air again and again. He smelled smoke!

Somewhere there was a forest fire. Then he turned toward the roaring river. Just before he reached the river he saw a lot of men going toward the fire. There was a horse and plow, then came another horse. Some of the men had hoes and picks. One man had a box, then came a dog. After the men had gone, Big Horn ran off toward the river again. Just as he got where he could jump into the river and land in a small pool, an old catamount leaped on his back. Big Horn had started to plunge into the river when his foot slipped and got caught. He leaped to get free. The root broke. He fell and turned over in the air. Seeing this the catamount let go and tried to spring to land, but he could not, instead he fell into the river, and so did Big Horn, but soon Big Horn was on shore, he looked at the river, there was the catamount being swept down stream! Big Horn was safe.

The End

GASOLINE, CIGARETTE AND HORSE'S TAIL BRING DISASTER

We have heard many tales of the serious consequences wrought through the near proximity of gasoline and lighted cigarettes, but when a horse's tail enters the train of incidents, the effects apparently is overwhelming, judging from the story received from Evanston, Illinois.

There, a milk truck driver, smoking a cigarette, parked in the dairy yard to refill the gasoline tank. Fuel overflowed on the ground at the moment he flicked ashes from his cigarette. Instantly, the gasoline flared up and ignited his coat, which, in hastily removing, he threw on the tail of one of the twelve horses in a nearby barn. This annoyed the animal so that he switched his burning tail, tossing the flaming coat onto a pile of hay.

Result: A policeman managed to lead out the frightened horses but the fire loss included the barn, five trucks and some wagons; damage, $10,000. The National Board of Fire Underwriters estimates that careless use of matches—and smoking—caused fire losses of over $29,000,000 in 1927, while petroleum and its products resulted in losses of more than $12,500,000. It is well to treat these products with due care.

"BY GOLLY IM GOING TO DO BETTER"

We heard the other day of something a real dirt farmer said that ought to be cheering to discouraged folks.

He is a successful farmer, but like all farmers he has his seasons of hard luck. Last spring his promising start was ruined by a late cold snap. He replanted as quickly as possible, and just when it appeared that he had built success on disaster the floods came, and again his prospect was ruined. The result was the poorest crops he had ever made, and a heavy financial loss.

The other day this farmer was talking to a friend of the discouraging year just closed. "I certainly had hard luck last year," he said.

"And what are you going to do this year?" his friend inquired. The farmer threw back his head, thrust out his chin, bulged his chest till a vest button threatened to pop, and said with deep unction, "By golly, I'm going to do better!" Good old farmer!

That's the spirit that wins. That's the spirit that can't be side tracked or smothered or discouraged. That's the spirit that will make a crop in 1929. For freezes may blight and floods may sweep over the land, but you can't whip a man who sticks out his chin an inch further in front when the fates seem to have conspired to take the heart out of him.

"By golly, I'm going to do better!" Nail that to your masthead, and hoist your sails.

If there is any pig in a man's nature it is sure to crop out when he travels.

Members of Franklin Grange seem to like to spring surprises on some people. This is the third time they have chosen Pastor Young and wife for this experience. The occasion was Mrs. Young's birth and wedding day which they chose to remind them of in a very pleasant way. The eventful day was March 17, St. Patrick's birthday. The birthday cake was large, rich and handsome. The sum of money contributed would make a liberal wedding fee. The whole expression was so friendly that we felt the gracious spirit of the promotors.

More About The Furlong Family.

Interesting Notes in Early History of Greenwood

Mrs. Abbie R. Trask, Bryant Pond, Rt. 1, writes interestingly of events and families connected with the early history of Greenwood and surrounding territory.

In the Advertiser of March 8 was published a sketch about the late Atherton Furlong, oratorial tenor, painter and teacher, who was born in Greenwood in 1849. He came from a family of some prominence and the name is perpetuated in Furlong Pond, situated in Albany and Greenwood. Following is Mrs. Trask's communication:

"I was interested in your article of last week, in regard to the Furlong famil. At one time, a good many years ago, my father and mother lived at what was once called Greenwood City and they were neighbors to the Furlongs. I was born there in 1850 and while I was a small child my father bought a farm on Howe Hill in Greenwood and I can remember of Eli Furlong and his sister, Ardelia visiting us and staying over night. I think my brother, O. F. Hobbs went to school with them.

"Not so very long after, they all went West and located in Oshkosh, Wisconsin, and they used to write to us for quite a long time. Ardelia was a teacher out there and used to write to me about her scholars. It has been a long time since I have ever heard from them until I saw that in the paper. I think this Atherton must have been a younger one, but I certainly think he was smart. I have often heard my mother speak of Zenas Pool. Wonder if he is the one the book is about? I have heard my father speak of Furlong Pond as being named for that family. I think most of the people of that time are gone. There used to be the Patches, Coburns, Tuells and Furlongs. This is no information, but thought I would just tell you the little I know about them."

My Old Farm Home

Written and Read at South Paris Grange By Aunt Sabrina Jackson, Who is Eighty-five Years Old

There's a little red farmhouse that stands on the hillside;
Where roses and grapevine shadow window and door;
An orchard where blossoms make fragrant the bower,
For bird and for bee in those sweet days of yore.

On green, sunny slopes, the sleek kine are feeding,
Lambs gambol and frolic on hillside and plain
On fleet flashing wing the swallow is speeding
Over fields where billows the ripe golden grain.

Where the sun from the East bursts forth in his glory,
With sunshine and shadow the valley to fill;
With sides all rock-ribbed and crest grim and hoary,
Like a sentinel on guard stands Old Cobble Hill.

The homes of dear friends lie scattered around me,
In the far distant West the White Mountains arise;
While nearer lie hills rich-hued, like the rainbow,
And arched over all the fairest of skies.

Here love and contentment join hands in the morning,
And follow my footsteps through toil of the day,
Bringing zest to each pleasure and balm to each sorrow,
And hope for the future so far, far away.

But dearer than cottage or rainbow-hued hillside,
Are friends that I know in days that are gone,
Who gather at evening around the warm hearthside,
And fill the old home with mirth and with song.

Those dear friends, alas! they long have been severed,
Some go to the East, others seek the far West;
While many, ah, many, have crossed the dark river,
And now sing their songs in the home of the blest.

The dear old home, it now sleeps in ashes,
The fires on its hearth-stone have long ceased to burn.
The glad days of youth, they too have departed,
Yes, long since departed to never return.

And now reminiscene, I sit by the fireside,
In memory relive those sweet days of yore;
Press the hands of loved ones, and list to the voices
That on earth I will hear never-more.

—MRS. SABRINA JACKSON.

DENOMINATIONAL SCRAPPERS

Two little boys got to scrapping going home from church one day and the elder of the two gave the other one a hit that hurt his lip quite badly. When they got home they told their mother that they got to scrapping on the way home. She said, "You ought to be ashamed to go to scrapping on the way home from the house of God, you are not good Congregationalists, boys."

The younger said, "I'm not a Congregationalist. I'm a Christian Scientist. You ought to thank God that we didn't scrap in the house of God."

Shortly, the younger did something that called for praise. The mother said, "What are you now, a Christian Science boy?"

"O no," the little shaver said, "I'm a Congregationalist now."

It doesn't matter what planet a man is born under so long as he is able to keep on the earth.

MORE GOOD BLOOD FOR MAINE

Cummings, Stanton and Robinson Join in Procuring Fancy Young Bull from Iowa

It may be of interest to the many friends of the Black and White beauties to know that a very fancy young Bull, from Hargrove & Arnold Farms, Norwalk, Iowa, is to make his home at Sunnymead Farm, where he will head the fancy herd of Holsteins owned by A. D. Cummings. Two others helped to make this purchase possible, C. F. Stanton, also of Fore Street, near Norway and Ralph Robinson of Auburn, Maine, both owning fine registered Holsteins and all will share in benefits derived from helping each other.

Few, if any better bred bulls were ever owned in Maine. He carries two near crosses of King Pietertji Ormsby Piebe, the World's greatest sire of show ring winners, his descendants naving won over 745 first places and over 251 championships at the largest shows in the country in the past ten years.

King P. O. P. is from the World's Champion, Queen Piebe Mercedes, and is the youngest sire having twelve 1,000 pound daughters. The dam is by a son of the World's Champion for first five lactation periods, Rose DeKoe Wayne Butter Boy, the only 1,200 pound cow having two 1,200 pound daughters or four 1,000 pound daughters.

SPRING AGAIN

Dedicated to Our Editor, Mr. Sanborn
By Mrs. Winnie Gray Curtis,
North Bridgton

"Thank Goodness," he said, "It's almost time
To again feel the fish nudge at my line.
To think again it's almost Spring,
Makes a feller want to shout and sing.
Say, just smell that fir and spruce,
Just about time for the old sap juice;
For kids to freckle, and buds to swell,
Would take me a life time it all to tell.
You forget the mud, the skies so blue,
The whole world seems just right to you.
You hear folks say, 'My, walking's bad,'
Looking so gloomy, glum, and sad;
Think of wonderful days to come,
The pep of the breeze and warmth of sum.
The vision that I see all the time
Are the fish I'll catch with my hook and line,
So I'm going to shout and I'm going to sing,
The wonderful song—again 'tis Spring.

Why is it that the scholars and grown ups are so averse to spelling matches? I, for one, think it much more interesting than golf or any kind of amusement. Besides, it's an educational pastime. Truly, we think that if some of our friends who are considered good scholars, would attend a first class spelling match, say, once a week, or even one in two weeks, that they would soon become more efficient in that branch of education. From some letters received from school marms I think they need to learn something about the spelling book.

Electricity In The Home.

Paper Read Before the Brownfield Woman's Club by One of Its Members, a Former Resident of Norway

I was asked to write a short article on electricity in the home, or rather some of the uses, electricity can be put to in the home.

Perhaps it would be well to take up first the technical terms, such as watts, kilowatts, volts, and amperes. Volt is the unit of electro-motive force, so named after the famous Italian electrician, Volts, and Ampere is the unit of current, in electrical measurements. Kilo comes from the Greek word, which means one thousand. The word Watt comes from James Watt, the Scotch inventor. We all remember him as the boy who stopped up his mother's teakettle, by fastening down the lid and stopping up the nose, and letting the water boil until it broke the teakettle. That was a sorry day for the Watts, but out of that disaster sprang a great discovery for the world, the power of steam.

The word Watt in electricity means the practical working unit of electro-motive power, of one volt per second. As Kilo means one thousand and Watt, the motive force of one volt, a kilowatt is one thousand watts of electricity, a kilowatt hour means the continuation of this electric force one hour.

After understanding what can be accomplished with one kilowatt of electricity, and figuring the rate at ten cents per kilowatt hour, it is not difficult to estimate the cost of various tasks. Now aside from our lighting system, electric washing machine, ironer, electric refrigerator and vacuum cleaner, which are becoming universal in modern homes, a Kilowatt hour of electricity will perform many wonders that few realize. For instance, a kilowatt hour of electricity will keep your coffee warm at the breakfast table, every morning for a week, or run your sewing machine for twenty-one hours. It will cook fifteen chops in fifteen minutes, give you heat in your bed room for one hour, while you are dressing, in very cold weather. It will warm one's shaving water, every morning for a week, or warm your curling iron for three minutes every day in the year and twice on Sunday. Quoting Henry Ford, he says, "The great problem in the home today is that there is too much drudgery there. There is some machinery to use in the kitchen today, but most of it is still too expensive. We must find some way to reduce the cost and some way to lighten the labors of women."

Owen Young, chairman of the board of directors, of the General Electric Co., takes an optimistic view. "The records of the frontier days says Mr. Young shows that on an average, a man required two or three wives. Their household duties being more than they could bear. We have relieved them through our industries of much of that drudgery, and now, I welcome the day when electricity comes into their homes, to relieve them still further of their burdens.

It may have been economically necessary for us to kill our wives, but it was bad social practice. Today's procedure is an advance, both economically and socially." Such is the opinion of two of our noted men, Henry Ford and Owen Young.

Now in closing my remarks, I would like to add a word in behalf of the progress that has been made, to eliminate the fundamental drudgery of women. I will take the laundry iron, for example. In the British Museum is a thick, black, glassy substance, shaped like a door knob, with the rounded surface, smoothly polished. This primitive iron, which was rocked back and forth over the fabric, until the wrinkles disappeared, was taken from one of the Viking tombs in Great Britain and dates from somewhere in the ninth century. Two centuries later, the French invented an iron so constructed that burning charcoal could be placed inside, so that heat might assist the elbow in ironing the family work. Now mind you, it took two hundred years for the people of those days to discover that a heated iron was more effectual than a cold one. When we consider the slow, laborious process of those early days, to smooth the wrinkles out of a few garments, in comparison to the electric iron of today, we must admit a big growth of progress, although slowly born. We read about Mr. Ford's electrically equipped factory, which enables him to put out a much better and cheaper product, and so it would seem that we women, through the medium of electricity in the home, enabling us to do away with much of the strain upon our nerves, along with the saving of our physical strength, should enable us to devote more time to the betterment of society in general, and ourselves in particular.

On Wednesday evening of last week, a meeting for church members was held at the cottage "Camp Rest Awhile." A delicious supper was served about half past six, by the committee in charge, Mrs. Blanche Tyler, Mrs. Ida Morgan, and Mrs. Fannie Green. After the supper there was a devotional meeting. Following this some of the many problems which confront the church, in its efforts to meet the needs of the community were talked over in a very interesting manner, by clergymen and laymen. Most of the members present entered into the discussion of the topics presented. There was a good attendance at this meeting and much interest manifested. On the evening of Good Friday the last of the Lenten services will be held at the same place at half past seven.

West Lovell Library

Organized in 1883—Met in the Homes—Raised Money by Circle Suppers

By Lydia A. Ells of Berlin, N. H.

The Library at West Lovell, like many other good things, was organized by a woman. In the year 1863 there was a very little reading in the homes of the average farmer.

Mrs. William LeBaron had the bright idea that a Circle could be formed and money be raised to buy books. She must have talked it over with others, for on May 1, 1883, the neighborhood met at the home of John Fox to discuss the question. Mr. Fox's home was a community center long before a clever phrase maker coined the word.

The idea being favorably received, officers were elected and a few simple rules adopted. I cannot remember the President or Secretary, but Mrs. William LeBaron was Treasurer and Mrs. Henry Eastman, Librarian. The faith of that, when no books were in sight.

The Society was formally named "The West Lovell Library Circle." The circle was to meet monthly at the home of some member. Dues were to be twenty-five cents annually. The meetings were to be open and everyone invited to attend. A picnic supper would be served and a five cent collection taken, children under twelve free. Only paid up members could use the books.

On this simple understanding, the Circle began its work and grew like the proverbial bay tree. Everyone was invited so everyone came and brought their friends. It was no unusual thing for forty or fifty people to meet and the hostess borrowed plates and cups all over the neighborhood. Three months later there was money for the first order of books. I do not know why William LeBaron should have been chosen to select the books, but he was, and I may add that he did a very good job. He knew nothing of publishers' lists but he had the Youth's Companion premium list and from this he made his selection. Some History, two books of Travels, several of John S. C. Abbott's, "Lives of Pioneers and Patriots", "Ten Nights in a Barroom", two or three stories, and good churchman that he was, "Pilgrim's Progress." When the books arrived, Lincoln LeBaron wrote out the simple rules, pasted them in each volume and turned them over to the Librarian. This was his last service, for he left Lovell soon afterward. He was drowned in Tillamook Bay, Wash. some years later.

There were about thirty books bought the first year. Among others, a set of Dickens, and one book loving little girl took them to her heart at once. I still think that the "Tale of Two Cities" is the greatest novel I ever read, and often weep over Sidney Carton.

But Mr. LeBaron gave us credit for more brains than we possessed when he bought Gibbon's "Rise and Fall of the Roman Empire." Some high school ought to get the set cheap, still in good condition. After we had about seventy-five volumes, the question of a book case was considered. The officers decided to give an apron and neck-tie party to raise the money. The older readers will remember them. The lady makes an apron and a tie to match and the gentlemen buy the ties. I was younger than the other girls and small even for my age, so usually I was reckoned as one of the children. This time, however, I was allowed to make an apron like the rest; it was white percale with a small red maple leaf design and Wesley Emery was my partner for the evening. I see his name in the Harbor items now and then.

It was customary for one of the older men to say Grace before supper. That evening the sight of Uncle Josiah Hatch, portly and bald headed, standing up to ask a blessing, his coat lapel adorned by a pink percale tie, was too much for the youngsters and we giggled disgracefully. It was so easy to laugh then. We laughed too, at another meeting.

There was quite a sum of money in the treasury and the president thought it would be a public spirited thing to buy a pick and shovel for the caretaker of the cemetery to use about the grounds. So she laid the matter before the meeting. The caretaker was about to build a new barn, and with this in mind one of the brethren rose to make a few remarks. He was tall and lean, and after he had undoubled much as a carpenter opens a two foot rule, he drawled out, "Wa'al I dunno as I should be in favor of using the Circle's money to buy a pick and shovel for J. A. to dig his barn cellar with." Then he sat down, but the motion was lost.

So for three years the Circle was the high light in our lives. Then May 1, 1886, the Circle met at our house for the last time and our friends came from far and near for we were leaving town in a few days.

May I digress to tell of our journey to Berlin, N. H.? My father, Moses Harriman, had engaged to work for a farmer, A. J. Howard, near Berlin, and decided to move his family there. So we loaded our few belongings and John Elliott moved us to West Bethel, where we stayed all night. My Uncle Nathaniel Harriman, who had moved from Lovell to Milan, N. H., a few years before, met us there and the next day we were at our new home. At the time it did not seem a hardship to ride for two days on top of a load of furniture, but I think of that journey when we run down to Lovell now, for a Sunday dinner and are home for supper.

So I knew little of the Circle and the library after that. I came down to Stowe two years later and taught school eighteen weeks for two dollars a week and board. I have thought since that I was overpaid, but I met one of my pupils, Charles Seavey, a few years ago, and he assured me that I taught him the multiplication tables so he had never forgotten them, so perhaps I earned the money after all.

Some years later the men built a small hall for the use of the Circle. I was there once with my cousin, Albert Fox, and we sat out the dances and talked over old times with our friends.

I was writing some letters for a Canadian paper, once, and I told of our Library. I had letters from two women in Alberta, N. W. T., asking for more details. I sent what help I could and afterwards one woman wrote that they had organized and were begining work along the same line. I meant to keep in touch with her, but did not so cannot report how they succeeded .

The years have slipped by and brought me more than I deserved, but if I could have one wish granted me tonight, I would turn the clock back and attend once more an unbroken Circle.

THE BOSTON TEA PARTY

Lloyd George and G. Grant Newman once
Were sipping cups of tea
The Englishman and Yankee were
As friendly as could be.
"Now see, Lloyd George," Grant Newman said:
"If all your folks and mine
"Could only sit as we do here
"And sip their tea and dine.
"With friendly feelings, cheerful chat
"And happy repartee
"Our Anglo-Saxon problems would
"Not worry you and me."
Lolyd George's eyes began to shine,
"Tut tut," he said, "Now, now
"We offered you some tea one time,
"It raised an awful row."

Only after a public favorite has become a "has-ben" does he begin to realize the emptiness of applause.

When some men do you a favor they never let you forget it.

Another Accident on the Mountain—Callers at Bartlett's.

Lester Merrill, one of the Penley Bros. birch haulers, stopping at Tebbet's boarding house, and hauling birch from the Green woods lot to the Tebbet's birch mill on the Thompson place, one day recently, volunteered to work a little over time, so he hitched up his team and went on to the green woods mountain—so called. There he put on a load of birch and started towards the mill, while at the snub rope, Lester of course stopped to have his load connected up with the snub warp, so the party on duty took a hitch around the load and Lester spoke to his greys,—Presto—in a flash, that hook disconnected from the load but all to late, for Lester was well upon his way down the line, standing erect upon his load of one and a half cords of birch with three thousand pounds of valuable horse flesh just ahead, and the whole outfit just hitting the high spots, while nearly to the foot of what some writers call the ram down, while others call it the death trap, but at this particular instance let us speak of it as Some Hill, the team partly left the road, hitting a large tree, tipping the load over and stopping every thing but Lester who still continued on his way for nearly fifteen feet, though not injured to speak of. The sleds and harness of course were more or less worse for their slide, though not serious, while the horses escaped practically unharmed.

In last weeks issue we mentioned where Norman Ford came up with Mr. Keniston to take the horse home to Locke's, they came with Silas' snow mobile with a vehicle trailing for Mr. Ford to ride back on, now while this vehicle was no bicycle built for two, it was a two wheeled cart built for one and Mr. Ford made the trip with pleasure in five hours.

Sledding is in poor condition and some of the birch teams have gone home and some of those here are not hauling while the rest of them double up, or in other words use four horses on a sled and at the best, the old saying goes it is hard sledding upon bare ground.

Jerry Bartlett was home for the week end.

Mrs. E. K. Kilgore has been in bed with lumbago this past week. Her sister, Mrs. Marjorie Kingman, has been helping the family with the housework.

Thursday, Horace Skinner drove to his father's home, left his car in the yard to get some cream in the house and when he returned, in five minutes, the top of the car was in flames. The fire was extinguished by the camp extinguisher, but not until the top was destroyed. No doubt the cause was from the wires. Horace was to have put his car in his father's barn and bring his father's car to the village for repairs. If such had been the case, another fine set of farm buildings might have been destroyed, so nothing is so bad it might not be worse.

How Weak Nervous Women Grow Stronger

Feel Better, Look Younger and Have Steadier Nerves

If you only knew—you rundown, anemic women—who are dragging yourself around on your "nerve"—what a wonderful increase in strength and health Tanlac will give you, you wouldn't hesitate a moment about going to your druggist and getting a big bottle of this splendid medicine.

Mrs. Addie Ham, of 11 No. Pine St., Dover, N. H., says: "I was run down, thin and anemic. My housework was a burden. Now my appetite has improved so that I can eat anything—three hearty meals a day. My housework is easy and I never feel nervous."

Tanlac is as free from harmful drugs as the water you drink—only Nature's own medicinal tonic herbs. Druggists know this and for the past 10 years have recommended it to men and women who need a quick "pick up" that will put them on their feet and give them a new interest in life.

So confident are the makers of Tanlac that if you are not helped by it, you get your money back on request.

Rub Musterole on the congested parts and see how quickly it brings relief as effectively as the messy old mustard plaster.

Musterole, made from pure oil of mustard, camphor, menthol and other simple ingredients, is a counter-irritant which stimulates circulation and helps break up the cold.

You will feel a warm tingle as it enters the pores, then a cooling sensation that brings welcome relief.

OXFORD—FORE STREET

Robins heralded the coming of Spring days befor the 20th of March and crows too, but the sweetest sound is the dripping of sap into the tin buckets hung on a nail beneath the spile that's jabbed into the tree where said robin sets forth to cheer the frozen heart of man. Ai Twitchell and son, Oscar are among those who are "sapping" having tapped over 200 trees. "No school" now for three weeks, purposely so a sweet time can be fully enjoyed, making maple honey. Now won't this make our Maine friends in California, who read the Advertiser wish they were with us to "syrup off."

Flora Cummings, who has been in West Paris three weeks with her son's family, while he was in the Massachusetts General Hospital, Boston, for observation, returned home the 19th.

The roads are veretiable swimming pools all along the way. The ruts are giving way daily as the sun makes the snow melt and big trucks and cars smash them on either side. There's many a stretch between pools of dry cement to encourage the weary autoist. How I do run on over nothing. Remember please that the editor requested that only items of interest be sent during town meeting times and printing of town reports. So after weeks of restraint with the warmth of these Spring days permeating a fellow's whole system you can expect what you get.

Thursday, Flora J. Cummings, accompanied Mr. and Mrs. Fred Waterhouse of West Paris to Charles Felt's at Portland. Mrs. Felt and Mrs. Waterhouse are sisters, another sister with her daughter came and a real house party was held while the men folk were attending to business in another part of the city. The sunshine was glorious, the roads fairly good and the air full of bird calls and the warm welcome genuine. All in all a delightful day was enjoyed.

Mrs. F. Chestina Twitchell's birthday, March 21, was not passed unnoticed by her friends and relatives, many cards were received, several called. A nice birthday cake was presented to her with "60" in candles and also numerous other gifts besides.

The snow is fast disappearing, the traveling good all along the principal highways, between Norway and Portland, we understand it is a question how to reach Lewiston. Not only crows and robins but blue birds and blue herons are declaring to us, for a number of days now, that Summer is almost here.

Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Twitchell, Miss Chestina Twitchell and Lawrence Brown attended Adventist Conference, held at Mechanic Falls, March 21-24. Also Mr. and Mrs. Ai Twitchell and children.

Lester Allen of Waterford, who has been living at John Grover's with his family and working for Grover has moved.

John Lamb of Allen Hill, who has had Leon Twitchell's horses for the Winter has returned them fine and dandy. Mr. Twitchell has recently purchased three cows.

Miss Glover, pastor of the Adventist Church was at E. E. Twitchell's, for the day, the 19th.

The Time to Boom Woodstock, is Now.

Be Ready for the Great Forward Movement Which Maine Will Witness

Now is the time for action. Now is the time for one united drive ahead. Now is the time for all loyal citizens of Woodstock to get together and by united action place this old town on the map.

A new day is dawning for Maine. The next few years will witness one of the greatest forward movements this state has ever known. Woodstock should be ready to take full advantage of the many opportunities coming this way.

This beautiful little town in the heart of the Oxford Hills has many advantages as a summer resort and as a year around place of residence. Within our town limits are five beautiful lakes and ponds, with many excellent building sites for summer cottages. When these are advertised and their attractions made known to the outside world the valuation of our summer property will increase by leaps and bounds.

Our town proper (Bryant Pond,) is located near the geographical center of Oxford County, almost exactly half way between Rumford and Norway. We are the center of trade for a portion of Greenwood and Milton and as this region develops there will be an increasing opportunity for our town to grow commercially.

Without question we have many possibilities along manufacturing lines. Electric light and power have now made many things possible that before were out of the question. It is up to us to support loyally our home industries and to encourage new ones, no matter how small they may be.

Farming has always been the leading business or occupation in Woodstock. With the growth of home markets our farmers will be better able to secure a larger share of the consumer's dollar. All signs of the times indicate that Portland is destined to become a great city. Lewiston and Auburn are also growing very fast. This means in the not distant future the creation of an excellent market for farm produce at our very doors, and a greater measure of prosperity for our farmers.

There are many things needed in this town if we are to grow and prosper as we should. We need a hotel, we need water, we need more sidewalks, more good roads and more industries of the right kind. We need a town hall, to serve the town as the community center and which will provide a place for basket ball and other indoor sports. Most of all we need co-operation among our merchants, among our farmers and the co-operation of all citizens in all that concerns the welfare of the town.

All good citizens hope to see Woodstock grow into a better town, a town offering greater advantages and opportunities for its young people. They want to see our farmers, merchants and all our townspeople prosper. They want to see the old town make steady progress year by year.

United action by the people can accomplish this. Every live town in Maine has a Chamber of Commerce or similar organization of its citizens to promote the interests of the community. Woodstock should have the same. Let us make such changes inthe constitution of our old village improvement society as may seem necessary to make it a truly town organization, make the dues low enough so that everyone can join, invite the women of Woodstock to take an active part, get all the people interested and boom the town in real earnest. The opportunities and possibilities are here. It needs only the united action of the citizens to send the old town forward. It's up to us.—Ralph M. Bacon.

Oxford County United Parish

Including Albany, North Lovell, East Stoneham and the Waterfords. Pastoral Staff: Revs. W. I. Bull, B. F. Wentworth, A. C. Townsend

It is a bit unfortunate that the Lenten Season and the mud season should come at the same time.

Last week, Wednesday, there was held a very interesting membership supper and fellowship meeting at the Morse cottage at Waterford. Members of the three federated churches and members of other churches ate together after which they discussed practical problems of church membership. On Friday evening a similar gathering was held for the North Waterford church at the home of Rev. W. I. Bull. It was the general sentiment that such gatherings should be held oftener.

Plans for Holy Week include a service at North Waterford on Tuesday evening; at South Waterford on Wednesday evening; at East Stoneham a special commemorative communion service on Thursday evening; and on Good Friday evening meetings at Waterford, North Waterford and East Stoneham.

On account of an epidemic of measles there was no service at North Lovell last Sunday and on account of the mud, none at Albany.

For the evening of April 6, there is planned a benefit evening for the family of Walter Lord, who recently lost their home by fire.

The three Waterford villages have now had serious fires, and there is some agitation for more adequate local fire protection. Whatever such small communities can do should be done before the need again arises. A meeting of the Community Association of North Waterford is soon to be called to consider what steps can and should be taken.

KEZAR FALLS

Death of Miss Newbegin—Palm Sunday Observed.

On the afternoon of March 19th., Miss Fannie Newbegin passed to that "land fairer than day". A severe cold suddenly contracted, and despite doctor and nurse, ended in less than three days fatally. Seventy-two years of life had practically been spent in the same groove; the dear, good school girl grew into a noble womanhood, but like unto many others, her environment did not allow scope for wifehood and motherhood. Dearly loved by her parents, she gave them in their declining years of her tender watchfulness, and later, when they had passed on, she worked for some years in the Kezar Falls wooden mill, a conscientious worker, earning her own living and blessed in the possession of many friends. It was a number of years ago that she had to leave, but her memory was kept green and of their own violition, the employees got her a beautiful floral piece which exhaled in its beauty and fragrance the memories they retained of her. Of a once large family, a sister and brother, are sole survivors. Mrs. C. M. Jameson and Elias Newbegin and both in failing health. Services were held at her home on the afternoon of March 22nd., Rev. Arthur Callaghan officiating. There was an abundance of lovely flowers and the bearers were friends and neighbors. The bearers, Frank Hubbard, Frank Edgecomb, W. M. Chellis and Owen Palmer. Later on interment will be at Cornish Riverside cemetery. At present the casket rests in the receiving vault at that place.

Palm Sunday was appropriately observed at the M. E. Church and the pastor's sermon ably seconded by his choir, supplemented by Mrs. Frank Emery, who selected for a solo that wonderful, sweet and comprehensive composition, "The Palms."

The Advent Church was ably represented by Rev. Bert Shorey, who was taking some of his parishioners on account of the inclement weather to church in his automobile.

Mr. and Mrs. William Haradon of New York City were called here recently on account of the sickness and death of Miss Fannie Newbegin.

KITCHEN HELPS

Rice can be cooked in an open kettle in 15 to 20 minutes. A large quantity of water should be used. As soon as a grain pressed between the thumb and forefinger is soft and has no hard portion in the center, the rice should be taken from the fire, drained, covered with a cloth, and allowed to steam until the grains swell and separate.

In cake recipes with a number of eggs, it is possible to substitute baking powder for one or two of the eggs called for, during the period of egg scarcity. Of course the cake will not be so rich as when all the eggs required are used. Allow one-half teaspoon of baking powder and two tablespoons of milk for each egg omitted. From half to two-thirds of the eggs called for should be used even when this substitution is practiced.

For rather novel sandwiches or thin bread and butter for afternoon tea make some orange bread. The flavor is given by the cooked peel of 2 oranges. This is cut into shreds, covered with water and cooked for about 20 minutes, or until tender, and then drained. Next cook the peel in a syup made of one cup of sugar and one-half cup of water until there is only about 1 tablespoon of the sirup left. Sift together 3 cups of flour, 4 teaspoons baking powder, and one-half teaspoon salt. Cut in 1 tablespoon of butter and add 1 well-beaten egg and one and a quarter cups of milk. Beat this mixture for about 3 minutes. Stir in the orange peel and mix thoroughly. Pour in a greased bread pan and bake for one hour in a moderate oven—(about 325 degrees to 350 degrees Fahrenheit.)

GIVE THE LAWN A BOOST

Where available, manure that has rotted for a sufficient length of time to destroy the weed seeds may be applied advantageously to the lawn provided it is fine and evenly distributed. Coarse manure put on in bunches is almost sure to smother the grass in patches. However, manure of a desirable character is at present very scarce and on most soils just as satisfactory or even better results can be obtained from the use of proper commercial fertilizers. Those that are high in available nitrogen are to be preferred. Good results have followed the use of a mixture composed of one part of ammonium sulphate and three parts of cotton seed meal, applied in the spring about the time the grass starts to grow, at the rate of 12 or 15 pounds to 1,000 square feet. Similar applications about twice during the growing season will be very helpful. Liberal fertilization will go much farther toward improving a thin turf than the mere broadcasting of seed.

"My boy, 7, would not eat. I gave him Vinol and the way he eats and plays now makes me happy. He gained 15 pounds."—J. F. Andres.

Vinol is a delicious compound of cod liver peptone, iron, etc. The very FIRST bottle often adds several pounds weight to thin children or adults. Nervous, easily tired, anemic people are surprised how Vinol gives new pep, sound sleep and a BIG appetite. Tastes delicious.

There are yet many pupils who have not acquired the tooth brush habit, more in the higher grades than the lower ones. A dental honor roll is to be put in each grade and as each child brings his certificate from the dentist, stating that all dental work has been done, his name will be put on the roll.
